K'TAKA LIFTS 2022 ORDER BANNING HIJAB IN CLASSROOMS

The previous BJP govt had banned Hijab in classrooms, which had sparked a nationwide controversy

BENGALURU

The Karnataka government on Wednesday withdrew its 2022 order banning wearing hijab in classrooms and has issued a fresh order permitting students to wear a 'limited traditional and practice-based symbols'.

The preceding BJP government had, in February 2022, banned students from wearing hijab to classrooms, giving rise to a controversy as some Muslim girls were prevented from attending classes since their dress was not in accordance with the uniforms of the institutions.

The BJP government also insisted that the girls follow the uniform prescribed by the schools or colleges they were studying in.

Further, in March 2022, the High Court upheld the government order, stating that wearing hijab was not an essential practice in Islam. The Supreme Court, however, delivered a split verdict in October the same year.

The present decision of the state government follows strong objections raised by leaders of the Muslim community when the Congress did not give the Davanagere bypoll ticket to a Muslim candidate. Congress' Samarth Shamanur Mallikarjun won by a thin margin of 5,700 votes, which was attributed to a split in Muslim votes.

Muslim leaders reminded Congress that the hijab issue, among others, remained unresolved for nearly three years since the party came to power.

School Education & Literacy Minister Madhu Bangarappa released the fresh order at a news conference along with Health Minister Dinesh Gundurao, a Brahmin, and Shivajinagar Congress MLA Rizwan Arshad, a Muslim, in this regard.

What does it mean?

The Karnataka government has withdrawn its 2022 uniform order that had imposed restrictions on religious symbols in educational institutions. The decision effectively removes the earlier guidelines that led to the hijab-related controversy in the state. Under the revised order, students in government, aided, and private schools and pre-university colleges are now allowed to wear religious symbols such as the hijab, sacred thread (janivara), rudraksha, and other traditional items along with the prescribed uniform. The earlier 2022 order had sparked widespread protests and legal challenges after it restricted religious attire in classrooms. With the latest move, the government has reversed its stance, while maintaining the requirement of a standard school uniform.

KARNATAKA HIJAB BAN TIMELINE

- JANUARY 1, 2022: Hijab-clad students were barred from entering a government pre-university (PU) college in Udupi, citing uniformity among students. This led to protests and a student going to the High Court.
- FEBRUARY 5, 2022: The BJP-led Karnataka government issued an order under the Karnataka Education Act, 1983 prescribing a uniform for all students to wear in state-run educational institutions, effectively banning hijab.
- MARCH 15, 2022: A 3-Judge Bench of the Karnataka High Court upheld the Hijab ban in state educational institutions, which led to the case reaching the Supreme Court.
- MARCH-AUGUST 2022: Despite the immediate filing of the appeal, the Supreme Court did not hear the case for over five months, until August 29.
- MARCH-AUGUST 2022: Despite the immediate filing of the appeal, the Supreme Court did not hear the case for over five months, until August 29.
- SEPTEMBER 21, 2022: The Bench, comprising Justices Gupta and Dhulia, began hearing substantial arguments in the case and concluded the hearings on September 21.
- TOCTOBER 13, 2022: The SC Bench delivered a split verdict in the Hijab ban case.

Big 'Vijay' for Thalapathy as TVK clears floor test

CHENNAI

AIADMK cross-voting jacks up TVK tally to 144 in TN assembly; LoP Udhayanidhi Stalin says the Vijay-led govt sustains with 'borrowed' allies and by splitting the AIADMK

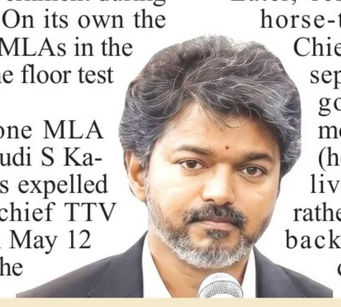
The cross-voting by 25 rebel MLAs of AIADMK helped make the TVK government's floor test in the Tamil Nadu assembly on Wednesday a cakewalk.

With the help of the AIADMK MLAs, the TVK government's tally improved significantly to 144 amidst allegations of horse-trading by the opposition.

Leader of Opposition Udhayanidhi Stalin said that the TVK government was sustaining with "borrowed" allies and by splitting the AIADMK.

As many as 25 AIADMK legislators, including former ministers SP Velumani and CV Shanmugam voted in support of the Vijay-led Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam government during the floor test. On its own the TVK had 105 MLAs in the House when the floor test was taken up.

AMMK's lone MLA from Mannargudi S Kamaraj who was expelled by the party chief TTV Dhinakaran on May 12 for supporting the TVK, voted in favour of the government.



As many as 21 AIADMK MLAs backing party general secretary Edappadi K Palaniswami and the latter too, voted against TVK while PMK's four legislators and the lone BJP member abstained. The DMK with 59 MLAs and its ally the DMDK (legislator and party general secretary Premalatha Vijayakanth) walked out.

Later, responding to the horse-trading charge, Chief Minister C Joseph Vijay said his government will move at full throttle (horse speed) to deliver development rather than indulge in backroom political deals.

EPS sacks AIADMK rebel leaders from party posts after split over trust vote

Cracking the whip, AIADMK general secretary Edappadi K Palaniswami on Wednesday sacked rebel MLAs, including former ministers S P Velumani, C V Shanmugam and C Vijayabaskar, from their party posts, hours after 25 legislators voted in the favour of the TVK government despite party "whip" asking them to vote against. Palaniswami, in a tactic move, removed several senior leaders, including former minister and his close aide P Thangamani, who could not perform well in the recently-held assembly elections. Through this action, he made the removals look like a result of the election debacle than one against the rebels. He also quickly appointed replacements for the posts, sending a strong message against rebels. The action came even as everyone expected Palaniswami to move Speaker J C D Prabhakar seeking disqualification of those who cross-voted.

Kerala will have to wait for one more day to know who its new Chief Minister will be with the Congress saying all discussions have been completed but pushed the announcement to Thursday.

JUST A CAUTIOUS STEP

'PM Modi's appeal about wise spending, not austerity'

NEW DELHI

The Centre on Wednesday clarified that Prime Minister Narendra Modi's appeal is not about spending less but about spending more wisely by reducing fuel consumption, avoidable dependence on imported goods, and foreign-currency-intensive services.

Official sources emphasised that the Modi government is not cutting capital expenditure, welfare spending, or subsidies in any manner.

While chairing a Cabinet meeting, Prime Minister Modi urged his colleagues to curtail unnecessary expenditure, particularly on petrol and other resources, in view of the ongoing West Asia crisis.

He is learnt to have asked ministers to focus on cost-cutting measures and consciously reduce the use of resources.

Sources said the Prime Minister also directed ministers to reduce the size of their official convoys and limit non-essential foreign visits.

Several ministers have already announced steps in this regard.

Modi has also asked for electric vehicles to be included in his own convoy wherever possible, without making fresh purchases.

Government sources stressed that the Prime Minister's call to conserve fuel, adopt work-from-home wherever feasible, and reduce avoidable foreign exchange outflows does not amount to "austerity measures," a term that carries a negative economic connotation.

PM asked Indians to cut fuel use, delay gold buys and avoid foreign travel; Centre said the voluntary appeals were meant to protect foreign exchange reserves, not signal austerity

Modi during a rally organised by the Telangana BJP in Hyderabad on Sunday urged citizens to reduce fuel consumption and spend more wisely amid the West Asia crisis.

He suggested several practical steps, including reducing petrol and diesel consumption, using metro rail services in cities, carpooling, greater adoption of electric vehicles, shifting parcel movement to railways, and working from home to conserve foreign exchange.

Union Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw echoed the Prime Minister's message, stating, "PM Modi has been guiding us about the less usage of products from outside. I also appeal to everyone to use limited overseas products and focus on self-reliance."

Bomb threat caller's mental health under scanner as multi-agency probe continues

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Fresh details have emerged in the investigation into the bomb threat call made during Prime Minister Narendra Modi's recent visit to Bengaluru, with investigators now probing whether the arrested individual is mentally unstable or linked to a larger conspiracy.

According to police sources, the accused, identified as Lohit, had allegedly made threatening calls not only to the Karnataka police helpline but also to the Tamil Nadu police helpline and several investigative agencies across the country.

Investigators said Lohit had recently been brought back from a de-addiction centre where he had been undergoing treatment. During this period, he reportedly accessed police and security agency helpline numbers online before making the calls.

Officials also recovered contact numbers of agencies such as the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI), National Investigation Agency (NIA) and other central investigative bodies from his mobile phone.

The accused has been questioned extensively by teams from State and Central intelligence agencies, the Internal Security Division (ISD), the NIA and the Tamil Nadu Anti-Terrorism Squad (ATS).

However, officials said Lohit has been giving inconsistent answers during interrogation, raising doubts about his mental condition.

Family members have reportedly submitted medical records stating that he has been undergoing treatment for mental depression.

NEET retest uncertainty leaves Karnataka students exhausted, anxious

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Shock, disappointment and uncertainty swept across Karnataka's student community after reports of a question paper leak in the May 3 NEET examination triggered concerns over a possible retest.

Around 1.5 lakh students from the State had appeared for the national-level medical entrance examination, considered the gateway for admission to MBBS and other medical courses. Many aspirants, who had spent months preparing intensively, said the controversy had left them emotionally and mentally exhausted.Students described the situation as particularly distressing because they had already completed rigorous schedules involving school, coaching classes and long study hours with little personal time.

"Many of us are emotionally drained. It is not easy to regain the momentum," said one student preparing for a possible re-examination.

Several aspirants criticised the National Testing Agency (NTA), which conducts the examination, alleging negligence despite previous controversies surrounding entrance tests.RC Prateeksha, a drop-year student preparing at a coaching institute, said the development had deeply affected students' confidence and health."After last year's disappointment, I put in so much effort. It's heartbreaking now. NTA should take more care and responsibility," she said.For many long-term aspirants, the uncertainty has reopened emotional stress they believed had finally ended after the examination.

"I can't shift to another career option, and I can't give up on my dream either," said K Susiraji, who has been preparing for NEET over multiple attempts.Parents too expressed concern over logistical and emotional challenges linked to a retest. One parent said his son, studying in a residential school in Karkala, was reluctant to return for another examination after mentally moving on from the preparation phase.Teachers and academic counsellors observed mixed reactions among students. Raghavendra Hegde, a NEET mentor, said candidates scoring between 500 and 580 marks appeared particularly upset, while some lower-scoring students viewed the retest as another opportunity.Education experts noted that several students were now reconsidering their career choices.

Several students expressed fears of burnout, besides reduced preparation time for a re-test.

G Sridhar, Founder of Deeksha Networks, said many students were exploring engineering and CUET-based admissions instead of continuing with uncertain medical entrance preparations.However, not everyone opposed the retest. Muniswamy Thimmegowda, father of a high-scoring candidate, welcomed the move, saying it would ensure fairness and prevent malpractice from affecting deserving students seeking seats in top medical colleges like Bangalore Medical College and Research Institute.

IT-BT firms likely to resist new flexi work hour regulations in Karnataka

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Karnataka Labour Department is preparing for fresh friction with the State's IT-BT industry as companies are expected to seek exemptions from the Centre's newly notified 48-hour weekly flexi work cap under the Occupational Safety, Health and Working Conditions (OSH) Code.

Officials said concerns have emerged because the IT-BT sector already enjoys a five-year exemption under the Industrial Employment (Standing Orders) Act, 1946, and many companies may consider rigid flexi-hour regulations unsuitable for project-based operations and global work schedules.

Labour Minister Santosh Lad said the government was not willing to dilute employee work-hour protections despite requests from industries.

"We had received requests from companies for 11 to 12 working hours per day, but those proposals were rejected outright," Lad said.

He added that Karnataka had already adopted flexihour provisions earlier and the State did not currently foresee major implementation concerns.The Labour Department is expected to hold a meeting later this week to finalise operational rules and prescribe penalties for violations under the new framework.Officials stated that Karnataka, which introduced flexible work week provisions through amendments to the Factories Act in 2023, would now align its rules with the Centre's latest notification.he earlier amendments had enabled extended daily work shifts for a mobile phone manufacturing company operating in the State.

However, officials clarified that companies seeking approval for flexible schedules would now have to meet stricter compliance conditions.

According to Labour Department sources, firms proposing longer daily shifts and reduced workdays would be required to provide mandatory dormitory facilities, canteens and health infrastructure for employees.Authorities also indicated that physical inspections would be conducted before approvals were granted for any flexi-hour arrangements.Officials further said the IT-BT sector was expected to seek special exemptions from the proposed rules, similar to exemptions previously sought under other labour regulations.Industry representatives are reportedly concerned that tighter work-hour controls could affect operational flexibility, particularly for firms dealing with overseas clients and time-zone-dependent projects.The Labour Department, meanwhile, has maintained that employee welfare and workplace safeguards would remain central to the implementation process.Government sources said the State intends to strike a balance between industrial flexibility and labour rights while framing the final rules for implementation across sectors.

Private Schools Assn Opposes Proposal for Online Classes amid Global Tensions

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Private school management bodies and educationists in Karnataka have opposed suggestions to shift school education online in view of concerns arising from the ongoing Iran conflict, arguing that students are still recovering from the long-term impact of pandemic-era virtual learning.

D. Shashi Kumar said schools should continue with physical classes and warned against repeating the disruptions experienced during the Covid-19 pandemic.

"For over 500 days, schools remained shut during the pandemic. We are yet to recover from the impact it had on children and their learning levels," he said.

He maintained that online education may work for higher education institutions but was unsuitable for school students, particularly at the primary and secondary levels where classroom interaction plays a critical role in learning and development.Educationist V.P. Niranjanaradhya also criticised the recommendation, saying education extends beyond textbook instruction and digital delivery ."Education is a holistic process involving social development, play, interaction with classmates, creativity and the building of human values," he said.Niranjanaradhya further pointed out that students continue to face several lingering problems caused by prolonged online learning during the pandemic. These include mental stress, loneliness, learning difficulties, vision-related issues, mobile phone addiction and reduced social interaction.

He stated that many of these concerns remain unresolved even years after schools reopened.The educationist also noted that several countries had introduced regulations and restrictions on excessive use of digital technology in classrooms due to concerns over its impact on children's mental and social wellbeing.

School management representatives said any future policy decisions involving online education should prioritise children's developmental needs and learning outcomes rather than relying solely on emergency measures adopted during the pandemic period.

FIGHTING FOR IDENTITY

Inspired by TVK, JD(S) considers regional rebranding

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The rapid political rise of C. Vijay and his party Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam in Tamil Nadu has sparked fresh discussions within Janata Dal (Secular) over rebuilding itself as a stronger regional political force ahead of the 2028 Karnataka Assembly elections.Sources within JD(S) said the party leadership and senior functionaries were increasingly debating the need to revive the organisation's independent identity and reduce long-term political dependence on the BJP. Party insiders pointed to TVK's ability to quickly mobilise regional sentiment and attract young supporters despite being a relatively new entrant in Tamil Nadu politics. This, they believe, has highlighted the continuing relevance of regional identity politics in southern states.Several leaders reportedly feel JD(S) can attempt a similar repositioning by projecting itself once again as a Karnataka-centric regional outfit focused on agrarian issues, regional aspirations and consolidation of the Vokkaliga community.The internal discussions mark a notable shift after JD(S) entered into an alliance with the BJP ahead of the 2024 Lok Sabha elections, primarily to consolidate anti-Congress votes in the Old Mysuru region. While the alliance helped the party electorally in some constituencies, concerns have reportedly grown within sections of the organisation over JD(S) gradually losing its distinct political identity."JD(S) was strongest when it projected itself as an independent regional force rather than as part of a national coalition," a senior party functionary said.As part of the revival exercise, the party has already begun organisational restructuring by reshuffling office-bearers and appointing new spokespersons to strengthen communication and public outreach.

Balebare Ghat closure triggers Nagodi Ghat traffic crisis

Balebare Ghat's closure for repairs has tripled traffic at Nagodi Ghat, raising safety concerns as the monsoon season approaches.

KUNDAPURA

The closure of Balebare Ghat for urgent repairs has sparked a massive traffic crisis at Nagodi Ghat. With the main route blocked, vehicle numbers on the narrow Nagodi stretch have tripled, raising serious safety fears as the monsoon season approaches.

Udupi officials shut down Balebare Ghat in April following dangerous landslides on State Highway-52. This move forced all drivers traveling between coastal Karnataka and the Malnad region to find new paths. Since Agumbe Ghat bans heavy vehicles, trucks and tankers are now squeezing through Nagodi Ghat, which was never built for such heavy loads.

The situation has turned the 12-kilometer mountain pass into a bottleneck. Narrow roads and the nearby Sigandur bridge have added to the chaos, causing long delays for commuters heading to Shivamogga and Bengaluru. Locals are worried that the constant weight of heavy traffic will cause the road to crumble before the heavy rains even arrive.

Currently, the Public Works Department is spending 6 crore rupees to fix Balebare Ghat, but workers admit the job won't be finished before the rains start. While there are plans to widen Nagodi Ghat and build stronger walls, progress is stuck due to forest clearance issues.

Frustrated residents are now calling on the government to act fast. They want immediate road repairs and better safety measures. Without quick intervention, this vital link remains a dangerous path for thousands of daily travelers who have no other way to get across the hills.

Unseasonal rain threatens Udupi mango harvest

UDUPI

Unseasonal rain in coastal Karnataka brings relief from heat but threatens mango harvests and other crops with damage, pests, and significant financial losses for farmers.

Unexpected rain in Udupi and Dakshina Kannada has left local farmers feeling both relieved and deeply worried. After weeks of intense summer heat that dried out the soil, the recent showers have cooled the land. However, for many growers, the timing of this rainfall could not be worse.

Mango farmers are currently the most concerned. With the harvest season in full swing, strong winds and heavy droplets are knocking ripe fruit off the trees. Beyond the physical damage, the extra moisture can cause spots on the fruit and ruin its texture, making it much harder to sell in the market. This represents a significant financial threat to families who depend on the mango season for their yearly income.

It isn't just the mangoes at risk. Growers of arecanut, coconut, and jackfruit fear that the damp weather will invite pests and fungal diseases. If the humidity stays high, crops can rot quickly. On a brighter note, watermelon farmers are breathing a sigh of relief, as most of their fruit was already picked before the clouds opened up.

Horticulture officials are now working with scientists at the Brahmavar Agricultural Science Centre to help. They are studying the weather patterns to give farmers the best advice on how to protect their plants from infections. For now, the farming community remains on high alert, watching the skies and hoping that these "healing" rains don't turn into a harvest disaster. Everyone is waiting for a clear sun to return.

A Gundibailu woman filed a police complaint against her husband for dowry harassment, physical assault, and attempted murder.

Police probe abuse and gold theft allegations

UDUPI

A 38-year-old woman from Gundibailu has approached the local women's police station to report a harrowing tale of abuse and theft. Jayalakshmi filed a formal complaint against her husband, Jagadeesh Babu, and four others, accusing them of dowry harassment, physical assault, and even a terrifying attempt on her life.

According to the complaint, the trouble began long after their 2013 wedding. Jayalakshmi's family had originally provided 15 sovereigns of gold and 3 lakh rupees for marriage costs. However, she claims her husband later pressured her for an additional 5 lakh rupees to fund a business venture in Dubai. The situation turned violent when she confronted him about an alleged extramarital affair. She claims she was beaten and threatened with death during these arguments.

The allegations take an even darker turn, as Jayalakshmi told police that the accused forcibly took her two children away. She further alleged that they broke into her home to steal vital documents, including passports and school records, along with mobile phones and jewelry. Most disturbingly, she described an incident where the accused reportedly tried to strangle her using a shawl.

The local police have officially registered the case under several serious charges, including criminal intimidation and assault. As investigators begin their work, the community is reminded of the ongoing struggle against dowry-related violence. Officers are currently looking into the claims of theft and the safety of the children as they move forward with the legal process.

Former Minister Defends PM's Economic Stability Plea

TIRTHAHALLI

Former Home Minister and BJP leader Araga Jnanendra has come out in strong support of Prime Minister Narendra Modi's recent economic appeal. He sharply criticized Congress leaders, claiming their opposition proves they care more about winning political points than helping the nation stay financially strong during global uncertainty.

The Prime Minister recently asked citizens to cut back on unnecessary fuel consumption and avoid buying excessive amounts of gold. The goal is to protect India's economic stability and save foreign exchange. Jnanendra argued that instead of supporting this patriotic move, the opposition is trying to confuse the public for political gain.

To prove his point, Jnanendra reminded critics that past Congress leaders made very similar requests. He pointed to Lal Bahadur Shastri, who famously asked Indians to skip one meal a week during wartime. He also noted that Indira Gandhi in 1967 and Finance Minister P. Chidambaram in 2013 both warned citizens against hoarding gold to protect the national economy.

"Congress seems to have forgotten their own history," Jnanendra stated. He explained that with wars and instability affecting many countries, India must focus on being self-reliant. He urged the public to show the same unity they displayed during the COVID-19 pandemic by following the Prime Minister's advice. By working together to save resources, he believes India can build a "future-ready" economy that remains safe from global shocks. He concluded that true national welfare should always come before party politics.

Youth Congress protests over NEET paper leak

SHIVAMOGGA

Police detained several protesters as members of the District Youth Congress tried to surround the home of MP B.Y. Raghavendra. The demonstration was a fierce response to the recent NEET UG exam scandal, which the group says has ruined the dreams of millions of aspiring young doctors.

The protesters expressed deep anger over the May 3 exam, which was canceled after reports of paper leaks and cheating. They accused the central government of failing to keep the testing process fair and transparent. According to the Youth Congress, this failure has put the lives of 23 lakh students at risk, many of whom come from families facing extreme financial hardship.

"Students work day and night for years to serve in the medical field," the group stated. They argued that repeated leaks have destroyed the trust of both students and parents. While similar controversies broke out in 2024, the protesters claim those issues were simply covered up rather than solved. They believe the national exam system has lost its credibility and security.

District President Harshita Gowda and other leaders led the charge, demanding that the President of India take immediate action. They urged for the dismissal of the current government to restore public confidence. The protest, which included many local figures, highlights the growing frustration over how national exams are managed. As the police cleared the area, the message from the Youth Congress remained clear, the government must be held accountable for the "ruined future" of India's hardworking medical students.

NEET leak sparks fresh political accountability demands

MANGALURU: Senior Congress leader Ramanath Rai demanded the resignation of the Union Education Minister after the alleged leak of the NEET UG 2026 question paper. Speaking at a press conference, Rai blamed the central government for failing to protect the future of lakhs of medical students. He said repeated paper leaks since 2020 showed serious weakness in the examination system. Rai claimed strict action against earlier offenders could have stopped the latest controversy. He also accused a "coaching mafia" and some retired officials of misusing the system and harming hardworking students. The National Testing Agency recently cancelled the May 3 examination after reports of leaked guess papers surfaced online. Although the CBI has started an investigation, Rai questioned whether government agencies could ensure fairness and student safety. Student protests across the country have increased demands for accountability from authorities and immediate reforms in national entrance examinations.

Court pauses new rules for Co-Operative societies

MANGALURU

The Karnataka High Court has delivered a major victory to local farming groups by pausing new changes to the state's cooperative laws. Justice E. S. Indiresh issued an order to stop the government from enforcing several parts of the Karnataka Cooperative Societies Amendment Act, 2025, after societies in Dakshina Kannada and Udupi complained.

At the heart of the fight is the government's power to appoint its own members to the boards of these private societies. Senior lawyer Jayakumar S. Patil argued that letting the government hand-pick leaders destroys the "democratic character" and independence of these institutions. He claimed the new rules, specifically Section 53A, treat these community-run groups like government offices rather than independent bodies.

The judge agreed that the situation needs a much closer look. He noted that there is a serious question about whether the state even has the power to make these changes, especially since many of these societies are regulated by the central bank and NABARD. Because of this legal confusion, the court has officially frozen several key sections of the law until a final decision is reached.

Mudipu Children learn skills in Jasmine Garden

MUDIPU

A unique life skills camp recently brought a group of children together at a beautiful jasmine garden house in Mudipu. Hosted at the home of Ravikala J. Kotian near Panela School, the event focused on teaching students practical lessons through the "Skill in Village" project. The initiative was a joint effort between the Jana Shikshan Trust and the local School Development Committee.

The camp aimed to connect children with their community and environment. Instead of sitting in a traditional classroom, students participated in hands-on activities. They learned about the importance of cleanliness, how to manage waste to reach "zero waste" goals, and the value of reading books. The children were also introduced to the basics of the Indian Constitution, practiced English communication, and discovered the secrets of successful gardening and jasmine farming.

The event was officially opened by Sheena Shetty, a former government official. In a meaningful gesture, he presented a copy of the Constitution and a medicinal plant to the host, who is well-known for making a living through dairy and jasmine farming. This choice highlighted the camp's focus on sustainable living and civic responsibility.

Expert coordinators Shashikant, Dhakshahini, and Soumya Sudha led the various activities, ensuring every child stayed engaged and inspired. By moving education from textbooks to the garden, the organizers hope to build a more confident and skilled younger generation. Parents and teachers praised the camp for giving children a chance to learn essential life lessons in a peaceful, natural setting.

SAMADHAN SAMAROH 2026

Special Lok Adalat for Supreme Court cases

MANGALURU

People in Dakshina Kannada with long-running legal battles now have a golden chance to end them. Principal District Judge Basavaraj has announced a special event called 'Samadhan Samaroh-2026.' This event aims to settle cases currently stuck in the Supreme Court through peaceful compromise rather than long trials.

Scheduled for August 21, 22, and 23, this special Lok Adalat will use mediation to help parties agree on a fair solution. From Karnataka, over 4,300 cases have been picked, including 43 from our local district. To make things easier, the court will even provide video calls so people don't have to travel long distances to participate.

Beyond the Supreme Court drive, two more local events are planned for July 18 and November 21. These will handle everyday problems like bounced cheques, road accidents, and unpaid utility bills. Judges and lawyers will be available in Mangaluru, Bantwal, and other nearby towns to help everyone reach a deal.

There are many benefits to choosing this path. When a case is settled here, the court fee is refunded to the person who paid it. Also, the final decision is permanent and cannot be challenged in another court. This helps clear the massive backlog of over 13,000 cheque bounce cases in the district. Earlier this year, a similar drive successfully settled nearly 20 crore rupees in disputes. Authorities are now urging everyone involved in legal fights to step forward and find a friendly ending to their troubles.

Nikhil Kumaraswamy challenges CM, predicts NDA win in 2028

Nikhil Kumaraswamy predicted NDA government in Karnataka 2028, confident JD(S) will surpass its 2004 seat performance

MYSURU

Janata Dal (Secular) youth leader Nikhil Kumaraswamy launched a sharp political attack on Chief Minister Siddaramaiah during a party event in Varuna constituency, claiming that political history would have been different if former Prime Minister H. D. Deve Gowda had not allowed Siddaramaiah to present a budget in his early political career.

Speaking at a Janata Dal (Secular) public function in Mellahalli, Nikhil said Siddaramaiah, who rose politically from the JD(S), was now speaking lightly about the party that shaped his career.

He challenged the Chief Minister directly and said he would contest him in Varuna constituency.

Nikhil Kumaraswamy also predicted that the National Democratic Alliance would form the government in Karnataka in 2028 with a stronger mandate. He claimed the JD(S) had earlier won 58 seats in 2004 and expressed confidence that the party would surpass that performance in the future elections.

He accused the Congress government of weakening welfare commitments and alleged that funds meant for Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe development under SCP and TSP schemes were being diverted to guarantee programmes. He also raised concerns over state finances and said rising debt levels were a serious issue.

Nikhil further claimed that farmer distress and suicides had increased in recent years and said the government had failed to address rural economic challenges. He contrasted this with earlier loan waiver initiatives implemented during JD(S) rule under H. D. Kumaraswamy, saying those measures supported lakhs of farmer families.

He also criticised political leaders who, according to him, left JD(S) after gaining power and said loyal workers were the strength of the party. Party leaders present at the event supported his remarks and participated in the meeting.

The speech turned into a strong political exchange between JD(S) and Congress leaders, with Nikhil asserting that public support would shift in favour of JD(S) and its allies in the coming years. He concluded by expressing confidence that a pro-people NDA government would come to power in Karnataka after the 2028 elections.

Supreme Court orders restoration of Mysuru heritage buildings

MYSURU

Expressing immense happiness over the Supreme Court verdict directing the restoration and renovation of the historic Lansdowne Building and Devaraja Market Building in Mysuru, Pramoda Devi Wadiyar, a member of Mysore Royal Family, has wholeheartedly welcomed the judgment and termed it a major victory for heritage conservation.

In a statement, she recalled that during the earlier tenure of the present Deputy Commissioner G. Lakshmikanth Reddy, when he served as Corporation Commissioner, detailed discussions had taken place regarding the restoration of the Devaraja Market. She said that through the His Highness Srikantadatta Narasimharaja Wadiyar Foundation, she had even volunteered to restore a portion of the market as a demonstration project to prove that the structure could be revived using traditional materials and methods originally employed in its construction. However, the proposal could not move forward due to the pending litigation.

Pramoda Devi Wadiyar urged the Government of Karnataka not to entrust the restoration work to the PWD. Instead, the responsibility may be given to a specialised heritage conservation organisation with proven expertise in restoring historic structures. The agency selected should also be entrusted with maintaining the buildings for at least five years after completion to ensure accountability and long-term preservation.

Highlighting the importance of the two iconic structures, she noted that the Lansdowne Building possesses immense commercial potential owing to its prime location, while the Devaraja Market represents one of the earliest models of what is today recognised as the modern mall concept.

She further expressed happiness that the legal battle had ultimately been pursued in the interest of safeguarding these culturally and historically significant landmarks for future generations.

BJP seeks action against KPCC spokesperson over Voters' list remarks

MYSURU

State BJP spokesperson M. G. Mahesh demanded that a case be registered under the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS) against KPCC spokesperson M. Lakshman for allegedly speaking in favour of illegal immigrants residing in Mysuru.

Addressing a press conference in the city on Wednesday, he urged the authorities to initiate legal action against Lakshman and arrest him for claiming that the names of 42,000 Muslims had been deleted from the voters' list in the Udayagiri area under the Narasimharaja Assembly constituency. But these are "false and baseless" allegations.

Mahesh said the State Government officials were currently engaged in voter mapping work and clarified that the Election Commission of India had no role in the process. The Special Intensive Revision (SIR) was conducted in 2002 and that year had been fixed as the cut-off year for enrolment in the electoral roll. People without valid documents must establish their citizenship by producing proper records.

Claiming that the SIR process was yet to commence in Karnataka, Mahesh questioned how Lakshman could allege deletion of 42,000 Muslim voters in Udayagiri even before the exercise began. The State Government and concerned authorities must take serious note of the statement, register cases against Lakshman and send him to jail.

In fact, the highest number of deletions had taken place in Gujarat, while 94 lakh names were recently removed in West Bengal. The former minister and Kerala MP Shashi Tharoor and several other leaders had welcomed the SIR exercise as a step towards cleansing the voters' list.

Referring to the recent Assembly election results in five States, Mahesh said the outcome clearly indicated that voters in Karnataka would reject the ruling Congress government. Fearing defeat, the Congress party was now demanding ballot papers instead of EVMs for the forthcoming GBA polls and opposing the SIR process.

The MP said PM-ABHIM strengthens health infrastructure by building specialty and critical care units, including new centres

PM-ABHIM Critical Care Centre to boost Mysuru healthcare: MP Yaduveer

MYSURU

Mysuru-Kodagu Lok Sabha member Yaduveer Krishnadatta Chamaraja Wadiyar said that the upcoming 50-bed Critical Care Centre in Mysuru under the PM-ABHIM scheme will significantly strengthen healthcare infrastructure in the region while preserving the historic importance of the Krishnarajammanni Sanatorium premises in Mysuru on Wednesday.

Speaking to reporters, he said the land was originally dedicated in memory of Princess Krishnarajammanni, who had died of tuberculosis. Following her death, the Maharaja had established the Krishnarajammanni Sanatorium for tuberculosis treatment at the site.

Over the decades, several governments expanded healthcare facilities there, resulting in the development of a major hospital and related medical infrastructure.

The MP said the Central Government's PM-ABHIM scheme aims at strengthening health infrastructure through the construction of specialty and critical care units. Similar tertiary and specialty care centres are also being established in Virajpet and Madikeri in Kodagu district.

Stating that the Mysuru project would greatly support the existing healthcare system, Yaduveer said the work is progressing with equal emphasis on speed and quality. The additional facilities such as another lift and an external ramp had been requested, and a fresh report has been sought to enable further proposals to be sent to the Centre.

The project consists of a 50-bed specialty critical care centre that will benefit not only Mysuru but also surrounding districts. Under the PM-ABHIM scheme, funds are allocated to districts for infrastructure creation, following which proposals are forwarded by the State Government to the Centre based on local requirements. He further stated that the chosen location was well suited for the project and expressed confidence that the work would likely be completed within six months.

Asked about the proposal to convert the old DC office into a museum, the MP clarified that the proposal has not yet been officially approved as concerns had already been raised regarding the present DPR and stressed that Mysuru's rich history deserves a world-class museum plan rather than a "cut-and-paste" approach.

Mysuru's heritage and cultural identity must be reflected properly in the DPR, he said, adding that all stakeholders were united in ensuring that the city gets a museum befitting its historical stature.

Speakers criticised exam system, citing student stress, unfair entrance tests, costly coaching, and inequality in higher education access

SFI stages protest over NEET-UG irregularities in Haveri

HAVERI

Students belonging to the Students Federation of India (SFI) staged a protest in Haveri demanding a fair investigation into alleged irregularities in the NEET-UG examination conducted on May 3, 2026. The protest was held in front of the statue of Mylar Mahadevappa in the city, where participants raised slogans against the National Testing Agency (NTA) and the Central Government.

SFI district leaders alleged that repeated complaints regarding question paper leak claims and examination transparency had raised serious concerns among students across the country. They demanded that the NEET-UG examination be cancelled and a thorough inquiry be conducted under the supervision of an independent judicial committee appointed by the Supreme Court. They also called for strict action against those responsible if any malpractice is proven.

Speakers at the protest said the current examination system is causing mental stress among students and questioned the fairness of national-level entrance tests. They alleged that rising coaching expenses have made competitive exams difficult for students from poor and middle-class backgrounds, leading to inequality in access to higher education opportunities.

SFI representatives further stated that the National Testing Agency has been facing repeated criticism over examination conduct and transparency issues. They urged the government to ensure accountability and protect students' educational rights.

District SFI leaders including Krishna Nayaka, Raghu Angadi, Sasikala Doddamani, Nand Chech, Sinchana Mallannavara, Saraswati Talwar, Lalita Pujar, Tejaswini Malapur, Bhagyashree Patil and others participated in the demonstration. Immediate implementation sought for Women's Reservation Act

The National Coalition for Women's Reservation–Karnataka held a press conference on Wednesday, demanding the immediate implementation of the Women's Reservation Act without linking it to the Census or delimitation process.

The coalition condemned the delay in operationalizing 33 percent reservation for women in Parliament and State Assemblies, calling it a violation of women's constitutional right to equal political representation.

Coalition members said the demand for women's reservation is the result of decades of struggle by women across India for an inclusive and representative democracy. While the passage of the 2023 Nari Shakti Vandan Adhiniyam was initially welcomed as a historic step, they argued that the conditions attached to its implementation have delayed women's political participation indefinitely. The coalition stated that repeated discussions on women's empowerment are meaningless without laws to support them. They said linking reservation to the Census and delimitation process is being used as a reason to delay implementation rather than as a democratic necessity. The coalition also highlighted ongoing efforts such as petitions and public campaigns to build support for the Women's Reservation Act. Women's rights activists and representatives of various organizations appealed to the media, civil society groups, and citizens to support the immediate enforcement of the Act to ensure equal political representation for women across India.

The coalition has demanded that the government implement the long-pending 33 percent reservation for women in Parliament without further delay. They urged that all conditions and procedural hurdles that are currently preventing its implementation be removed immediately.

The Commissioner met residents, welfare associations, and civic representatives to hear concerns related to waste collection, tree cutting waste, and disposal of construction and demolition debris. He said citizen feedback will be used to improve service delivery and strengthen urban cleanliness systems.

Officials assured that action will be taken against violators and that designated disposal sites will be used more effectively to prevent unauthorized dumping across the locality.

The meeting also discussed eco-friendly handling of green waste generated from tree pruning in parks and roadside maintenance. Officials were instructed to ensure safe and planned tree trimming, especially ahead of the monsoon season.

Commissioner Ramesh emphasized the need for technology integration in civic services. He proposed GPS tracking of waste collection vehicles, use of mobile applications, and digital dashboards to monitor performance and improve transparency in operations.He also announced plans for a "Citizen Rating" system, where residents can evaluate cleanliness levels and the responsiveness of sanitation staff in their areas. He said the feedback system would help identify low-performing zones and enable quick corrective action.

A special monitoring team headed by the Bommanahalli Zone Joint Commissioner will be formed to oversee door-to-door waste collection, attendance of sanitation workers, and removal of black spots in HSR Layout.

The Commissioner added that all suggestions from residents will be reviewed and incorporated into future planning to build a cleaner and more sustainable Bengaluru.

Mandali said limited medical seats force students abroad; NEET controversies persist; over 23 lakh candidates compete annually for few government and private medical seats.

Mandali question transparency in medical entrance exams system

GADAG

Gadag District Congress Campaign Committee President Ashoka Mandali has accused the Bharatiya Janata Party of destroying the dreams of medical students after alleged irregularities in the NEET UG 2026 examination.

In a press release, he said the National Testing Agency cancelled the exam, affecting 22.7 lakh students across India. Leaders alleged that a paper leak led to arrests in Rajasthan and raised concerns about fairness and transparency. They questioned the government's handling of repeated exam leaks and said students are losing trust in the system.

The leader also said millions go abroad for medical education due to limited seats and rising competition in India. In past years, controversies over NEET results, grace marks, and court cases have raised doubts about the exam process. Officials say over 23 lakh students appear annually while only a small number secure medical seats in government and private colleges. Students from India also travel to countries like Georgia, Kyrgyzstan and Uzbekistan for affordable medical studies. Mandali demanded strict action and said the issue reflects wider problems in national examination systems and governance.

The controversy has triggered political debate between parties over education policy, student safety and exam reforms. Authorities continue to investigate the alleged leak while students and parents wait for clarity on admissions. Experts say repeated leaks damage trust and highlight the need for stronger security in national level examinations. Students' future remains uncertain as authorities review the situation and consider possible reforms in testing systems.

Political leaders continue to exchange allegations while families express concern over education stability and fairness. Overall, the incident has raised nationwide attention on medical entrance examinations and their integrity. Officials and leaders are expected to meet soon to discuss solutions and restore confidence among students and parents.

Punjab-origin biker gang founder jailed in US

CHANDIGARH

A United States federal court in California has sentenced Punjab-origin Jashanpreet Singh, founder of the Stockton-based Punjabi Devils Motorcycle Club, to five years and four months in prison for illegal firearms dealing and possession of a machine gun.

According to the US Department of Justice, the 27-year-old had pleaded guilty to unlawful firearms trading and illegal possession of prohibited weapons. US District Judge Dale A Drozd delivered the sentence in Sacramento on May 12.

Authorities said Singh tried to escape to India after the case came to light. He was arrested at San Francisco International Airport on June 26 last year before boarding a flight. Officials stated that Singh earlier faced charges in San Joaquin County and later failed to appear before the court on July 21, resulting in a bench warrant against him.

Federal prosecutors said Singh attempted to sell several illegal weapons to an undercover officer on June 6 last year. The weapons reportedly included a short-barrel rifle, three assault weapons, three machine gun conversion devices and a revolver.

During a search of his residence, investigators recovered additional firearms, a working machine gun, a silencer, high-capacity drum magazines, a pineapple-style hand grenade and suspected parts of a military-style Claymore mine. Officials said the bomb squad later destroyed the seized explosives and weapons.Authorities said the Punjabi Devils Motorcycle Club, founded by Singh last year, operated as a support group linked to the Hells Angels. Training aircraft emergency landing raises fresh concerns

MUMBAI

TA two-seater training aircraft belonging to Red Bird Aviation made an emergency landing near Gojubabi village in Baramati, Maharashtra, on Tuesday after developing a technical problem during a training session.

According to preliminary information, the aircraft suffered an engine malfunction while flying over the area. The pilot quickly responded and safely carried out an emergency landing in an open space near the village, preventing a major accident. Officials confirmed that no casualties or serious injuries were reported in the incident.

Residents rushed to the spot after noticing the aircraft descending rapidly. Many villagers gathered around the site before police and local administrative officials arrived and secured the area. Authorities later restricted public access as technical experts began examining the aircraft.

Officials said the aircraft was being used for routine pilot training when the technical issue occurred. Initial findings suggest engine failure may have caused the sudden emergency landing.

Technical teams are now inspecting the aircraft to determine the exact reason behind the malfunction. The incident has again raised concerns about aviation safety in Baramati and nearby areas.

Earlier this year, Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister Ajit Pawar had died in a separate plane crash, drawing attention to safety standards related to small aircraft operations in the region. Authorities said a detailed investigation has been launched into the latest incident.

Aviation experts are expected to submit a report after examining the aircraft, maintenance records and training procedures followed by the aviation company. Officials added that further action would be taken based on the findings of the investigation.

AIRPORT UPGRADE

Cabinet clears Nagpur airport modernisation under PPP

NEW DELHI

The Union Cabinet on Wednesday approved the modernisation and expansion of Nagpur International Airport under the Public Private Partnership model. The decision is expected to strengthen air connectivity, improve cargo movement and support economic growth in central India.

The Cabinet meeting, chaired by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, approved the extension of the lease period of Airports Authority of India land given to MIHAN India Limited beyond August 2039. This will allow MIHAN India Limited to hand over the airport to GMR Nagpur International Airport Limited for a concession period of 30 years from the commercial operation date.

The project is considered an important step in developing Nagpur into a major aviation and cargo hub under the Multi modal International Cargo Hub and Airport at Nagpur project. Information and Broadcasting Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw said the airport will now be upgraded with private sector participation and government supervision.

Officials said MIHAN India Limited was formed in 2009 as a joint venture between Airports Authority of India and Maharashtra Airport Development Company Limited. Although airport assets were transferred in 2009, land related issues delayed the lease process. In 2016, MIHAN India Limited invited global bids to select a private operator for the airport.

GMR Airports Limited emerged as the top bidder, but the process was cancelled in 2020 before courts ruled in its favour. After the agreement was signed in 2024, plans were made to expand Nagpur Airport to handle 30 million passengers annually. Officials said the project will improve cargo.

BJP targets Punjab govt over law and order

Chandigarh
Bharatiya Janata Party National General Secretary Tarun Chugh on Wednesday criticised the Punjab government, alleging a collapse of law and order in the state and accusing Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann of engaging in political blame games instead of addressing public safety concerns. Chugh said Punjab is facing a serious security crisis and claimed the government has failed to control rising crime. He alleged that instead of responding to the situation, the Chief Minister is targeting media houses and social media creators to hide administrative failures. He listed several incidents, including blasts at police stations, an attack using a rocket launcher on the Punjab Police headquarters, attacks.

'Modi's appeal misread as austerity measure debate'

PM Modi's fuel-saving appeal is wrongly labelled austerity despite focus on economic caution and efficiency

NEW DELHI

Multiple media reports and opposition leaders have described Prime Minister Narendra Modi's recent appeal on fuel conservation, work-from-home practices, reduced imports, and limiting non-essential foreign travel as austerity measures. However, experts say this interpretation is incorrect and misleading.

The term austerity has a specific economic meaning. It refers to situations where governments cut spending, reduce welfare programmes, lower subsidies, and restrict public investment to control fiscal deficits. Economists often link austerity with slower growth, reduced public services, and contractionary policies. None of these conditions exist in the present situation.The government has not reduced capital expenditure or welfare schemes. Instead, public investment in infrastructure, manufacturing incentives, and social programmes continues as before. PM Modi's appeal is seen as a call for responsible economic behaviour during global uncertainty.At a public meeting in Secunderabad, the Prime Minister urged citizens to help protect the economy from global shocks caused by geopolitical tensions and supply chain disruptions. He highlighted rising fuel prices and economic uncertainty as key concerns.He encouraged people to use public transport, adopt car pooling, and increase use of electric vehicles. He also suggested that offices and industries revive work-from-home systems and virtual meetings to reduce fuel consumption, similar to practices during the Covid-19 period.The Prime Minister also advised avoiding unnecessary foreign travel and reducing imports of non-essential goods to save foreign exchange. Experts said these steps reflect economic prudence, not austerity.India's heavy dependence on imported crude oil makes it vulnerable to global price swings and regional conflicts, impacting inflation and trade balance. Experts said PM Modi did not suggest spending cuts but focused on efficient resource use.

Naidu announces energy plan, urging reduced fuel use, travel, gold spending, and promoting green governance

Naidu pushes work from home governance model

AMARAVATI

Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister N. Chandrababu Naidu on Wednesday said the "Work from Home" system is becoming a permanent feature and will also be introduced in government administration. He said modern technology now allows many services to function remotely and this should be encouraged for efficiency and cost saving.

The Chief Minister supported Prime Minister Narendra Modi's appeal for energy conservation and responsible public behaviour amid global uncertainties, including the ongoing conflict in West Asia. He urged citizens to follow the eight-point agenda suggested by the Prime Minister to reduce unnecessary consumption and support the national economy.

Naidu said the state government will soon announce its own detailed action plan on energy saving and resource management. He stressed that reducing fuel use will help conserve foreign exchange and strengthen the economy during challenging times.

Speaking at the foundation ceremony of the Bollineni Institute of Skill, Education and Research in Nidamarru, he said government officials and public representatives should set an example by reducing convoy sizes and avoiding wasteful expenditure. He also called for rational security arrangements that are practical and necessary.Naidu advised people to reduce foreign travel and instead explore domestic tourist destinations. He said India has rich tourism potential and citizens should adopt a mindset of "My country, My responsibility." He also echoed the Prime Minister's suggestion to limit unnecessary gold purchases.Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister Chandrababu Naidu said work from home will be adopted in government administration. He supported PM Modi's energy-saving appeal, urged reduced fuel use, limited travel, and promoted domestic tourism, green energy, and efficient governance reforms.

3 TMC leaders arrested in Katwa cases

KOLKATA

Police in East Burdwan district's Katwa arrested three brothers linked to the Trinamool Congress on Tuesday in connection with multiple criminal cases, officials said on Wednesday. The arrests have sparked fresh political tensions in the region.

The accused have been identified as local Trinamool leader Babulal Sheikh, Youth Trinamool leader Kochi Sheikh, and Chhattu Sheikh. Police from Katwa Police Station took them into custody and later produced them before a local court after medical examination at Katwa Sub-Divisional Hospital.

Officials said several cases have been registered against the trio under various sections of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS). Investigators alleged that the accused were involved in intimidation and exerting influence in their area for a long time, creating fear among local residents. Police have sought custody for further questioning.

The arrests triggered strong political reactions in Katwa, with opposition parties targeting the ruling Trinamool Congress. Newly elected BJP MLA Krishna Ghosh alleged that criminal elements were protected during the previous TMC regime and said law enforcement is now taking necessary action.

However, family members of the arrested men denied all allegations, claiming the cases were politically motivated. They said the three brothers were falsely implicated and had earlier been called by police before being arrested.

The incident has led to heated debates in local political circles, with both sides exchanging accusations. Police officials said investigations are continuing and more details will emerge after further questioning of the accused.Authorities also noted that since the West Bengal

Uttarakhand launches energy conservation drive

DEHRADUN

Uttarakhand Chief Minister Pushkar Singh Dhami on Wednesday announced a 50 per cent reduction in his official vehicle fleet and said Prime Minister Narendra Modi's appeal for energy conservation is a national responsibility.

The decision was taken during a Cabinet meeting focused on short-term and long-term resource-saving reforms.

The Chief Minister said the appeal reflects the need for a self-reliant and responsible India. He urged ministers, officials and public representatives to avoid unnecessary travel, use public transport and help turn energy conservation into a mass movement across the state.

The state Cabinet approved several measures, including reducing ministerial fleets by half and introducing a weekly "No Vehicle Day", where government employees will work from home.

Citizens will also be encouraged to follow the same practice voluntarily.The government will promote video conferencing for official meetings and encourage the private sector to adopt flexible work-from-home arrangements.

Officials handling multiple departments will be allowed to use only one vehicle per day.

Karachi University teachers continue stir

Karachi

Karachi University is facing a serious financial crisis as teachers accused the administration of poor financial management and irregular budgeting practices. Teachers continued their examination boycott for the eighth straight day over unpaid dues, affecting thousands of students. Karachi University Teachers Society President Ghufran Alam claimed the university has pending payments of nearly PKR 1 billion and a total shortfall of around PKR 1.5 billion. He also alleged that income from several costly academic programmes was either hidden or not properly included in the university budget records

Inflation raises funeral costs across Pak

Rawalpindi

Rising inflation in Pakistan has made funeral and burial expenses unaffordable for many poor families in Rawalpindi. According to reports, families are spending between Pakistani Rs 40,000 and Rs 45,000 for burial arrangements, including grave space and excavation. Traditional free grave-digging services by volunteers have almost disappeared. Prices of burial shrouds and funeral items have also sharply increased. Several cemeteries are reportedly running out of space, while concerns have grown over unethical graveyard practices, including the reuse of old graves for money.

Putin hails test launch of 'Sarmat' ballistic missile

He termed it the "most powerful missile system in the world" and a key component of Russia's strategic deterrence capabilities

MOSCOW

Russian President Vladimir Putin praised the successful testing of the Sarmat intercontinental ballistic missile, calling it Russia's most powerful missile system. During a videoconference with Strategic Missile Forces Commander Sergei Karakayev, Putin congratulated military personnel, scientists, engineers and defence workers involved in the project.

Putin said Russia started modernising its strategic deterrence systems after the United States withdrew from the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty in 2002. He stated that Moscow then focused on creating advanced weapons capable of overcoming modern missile defence systems.

According to Putin, the Sarmat missile is more advanced than the Soviet-era Voyevoda system and has a payload strength far greater than Western missile systems. He claimed the missile could travel through both ballistic and suborbital routes, covering more than 35,000 kilometres with improved targeting accuracy.

The Russian President also claimed that the Sarmat system could bypass all current and future missile defence shields. He announced that the missile would officially enter combat service later this year.

Putin further mentioned other advanced Russian weapons systems, including the Avangard hypersonic missile, Kinzhal air-launched missile, Oreshnik medium-range missile and the Poseidon underwater vehicle. He added that the Burevestnik nuclear-powered cruise missile was nearing completion.

The Sarmat programme was first unveiled in 2018 as part of Russia's next-generation weapons initiative. Putin described the successful test as a major achievement for Russia's defence sector and national security.

'Russia to fulfil all agreements on energy supply to India'

Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov assured that India's energy interests would remain protected despite global tensions and Western sanctions on Russia. Speaking ahead of the BRICS Foreign Ministers' Meeting, Lavrov said Russia would continue ensuring stable energy supplies to India and honour all agreements with partner countries. He accused the United States of trying to control major global energy routes and pressuring nations maintaining energy ties with Russia. Lavrov claimed India clearly understood the current global situation and said Moscow would do everything possible to prevent "unfair competition" from affecting energy arrangements with New Delhi. Lavrov also criticised European nations for reducing dependence on Russian oil and gas, calling the move politically motivated. He claimed Europe was facing economic and energy problems because of restrictions on Russian energy imports and would increasingly depend on more expensive US liquefied natural gas supplies.

No leader as loved at home as Modi: Norwegian politician

OSLO

Former Norwegian minister and ex-UNEP chief Erik Solheim strongly praised Prime Minister Narendra Modi ahead of his Norway visit scheduled from May 18 to May 19.

Writing in Norwegian newspaper Dagens Naeringsliv, Solheim described Modi as the world's most popular politician and said Western leaders had much to learn from his environmental message and development policies.

Solheim wrote that no major world leader enjoyed the same level of public support at home as Modi. He noted that the Prime Minister's approval ratings remained close to 70 per cent and said Modi had become one of the world's most influential democratic leaders.

The former minister praised India's economic growth under Modi, saying the country was expanding at around seven per cent annually, faster than many large economies. He added that India could become the world's second-largest economy by 2050 if the present growth trend continued.

Solheim also highlighted Modi's humble background in Vadnagar, Gujarat, where his family sold tea at a railway station. He described Modi as a self-made leader who rose through determination and leadership.

He particularly appreciated India's renewable energy growth, mentioning large solar and hydropower projects, modern airports and improved roads across the country. Solheim said Modi's green development model aimed to reduce poverty while promoting sustainable growth. He added that Nordic leaders should carefully listen to Modi during their upcoming discussions.

Solheim commented on India's changing political landscape, saying the Bharatiya Janata Party had gained support across caste and class groups. He noted that the party received backing from both business families and tribal communities. However, he added that India's progress should ensure inclusion for Muslim minorities too.

Pak under fire over rising sexual violence cases

ISLAMABAD

A recent sexual assault case involving a 19-year-old mother in Pakistan's Rawat area has renewed concerns about the country's handling of gender-based violence and the challenges faced by survivors seeking justice.

According to reports, the young woman had gone out to buy Eid clothes for her children when she was allegedly assaulted inside a moving vehicle. The case has drawn public attention and increased scrutiny of Pakistan's law enforcement and judicial systems.

A report by Asian News Post stated that the incident reflects wider structural problems in addressing sexual violence. It highlighted concerns over delayed police responses, weak investigations and lengthy court proceedings, which often reduce confidence in the justice system.

The report said limited police resources, procedural gaps and insufficient training can affect evidence collection and slow investigations. It added that sexual assault cases in Pakistan frequently take years to conclude, placing emotional and social pressure on survivors and discouraging many from reporting crimes.

In letter to US president, congressional commission says silence will leave China free to 'use human beings as bargaining chips'

Exiled groups urge Trump to confront Xi on rights

WASHINGTON

The East Turkistan Government-in-Exile and the East Turkistan National Movement called on US President Donald Trump to raise issues concerning East Turkistan and Tibet during his summit with Chinese President Xi Jinping in Beijing. Trump began his two-day state visit to China on Wednesday.

The organisations accused China of carrying out severe human rights abuses against Uyghurs, Kazakhs, Kyrgyz and other Turkic communities in Xinjiang, which they referred to as East Turkistan.

The groups claimed the campaign included forced labour, mass detention, family separations and forced sterilisation.

The organisations also urged Trump not to support any agreement that could strengthen Chinese control over the region. They claimed that valuable minerals including lithium, titanium and rare earth elements were being extracted under conditions that international experts had criticised. Mamtimin Ala said the only long-term solution was restoring East Turkistan's independence. He added that the group had recently submitted a petition to the United Nations Decolonisation Committee seeking international support.

Salih Hudayar claimed an independent East Turkistan could provide critical minerals to the United States and reduce dependence on China. The groups also alleged that China was expanding missile and artificial intelligence infrastructure in the region, calling it a threat to American national security.

Trump's visit comes at a time of tensions between Washington and Beijing over trade, technology and security matters. The exile groups said the United States should place human rights concerns at the centre of discussions with China. They also urged world leaders to support the rights and identity of Uyghurs and other minority communities living in the region. China has repeatedly denied allegations of abuse in Xinjiang and maintains that its policies are aimed at fighting extremism, improving security and supporting development in the area.

EBU raises concerns over Tibetan religious freedom

BRUSSELS

Concerns regarding China's alleged involvement in Tibetan religious matters were raised during the Annual General Meeting of the European Buddhist Union (EBU) held in Brussels on May 9.

The gathering mainly focused on safeguarding the religious rights of Tibetan Buddhists and protecting traditional spiritual practices.

Rigzin Genkhang, representing the Central Tibetan Administration and the Office of Tibet in Brussels, appealed to the global community to stand with Tibetan Buddhists. He expressed concern over what he described as increasing Chinese efforts to influence Tibetan spiritual traditions and the future succession process of the Dalai Lama.

Genkhang stated that the selection of religious leaders should remain entirely spiritual and free from political pressure or state control. He also mentioned China's "Ethnic Unity Law" and referred to a recent European Parliament resolution that criticised the legislation.

The meeting took place at Saint-Gilles town hall and included European leaders, Buddhist representatives and officials. Among those present were Jean Spinette, Nicola Censini and Antonella Sberna, who addressed the gathering through a video message.

The European Buddhist Union urged the international community not to recognise any religious leader appointed by the Chinese government. The organisation also called for peaceful dialogue and diplomatic efforts to resolve the long-standing Tibet-China issue.

Baloch groups condemn Gwadar workers' shooting

BALOCHISTAN

Several Baloch labourers were reportedly killed and many others injured after alleged firing by Pakistan Coast Guard personnel in the Kuntani area of Jiwani in Gwadar district.

According to local residents and eyewitnesses, the workers were carrying out routine labour activities near the coastal belt when gunfire suddenly erupted, creating panic in the area.

Reports said injured workers were shifted to nearby hospitals, where some remained in critical condition. Pakistani authorities had not released any official statement on the incident at the time of reporting.

Several Baloch political parties, student organisations and rights groups strongly condemned the incident. Sholan Baloch described the incident as the "Kuntani massacre" and accused security forces of deliberately targeting poor labourers.

Hezbollah rockets target Israeli troops near Lebanon border

TEL AVIV

The Israel Defense Forces said Hezbollah launched rockets toward Israeli troops operating in southern Lebanon on Wednesday, though no injuries were reported. Sirens were activated in northern Israel, including the Zar'it area, after the attack.

According to the IDF, several rockets landed near Israeli soldiers stationed south of the Forward Defense Line. The military said troops were continuing operations to destroy Hezbollah infrastructure and remove threats to Israeli civilians.

The IDF also reported intercepting suspicious aerial targets in the operational area. In one incident, troops identified a person allegedly using surveillance equipment against Israeli forces. The military said the individual was later killed in tank fire. Another alert regarding a hostile aircraft infiltration near Avivim was later confirmed as a false identification.

Meanwhile, Naim Qassem said Hezbollah's military capabilities were an internal Lebanese matter and would not be discussed during ongoing tensions with Israel. In a televised speech, he warned that Hezbollah was prepared for a prolonged conflict and would not retreat under military pressure. The situation along the Israel-Lebanon border remains tense despite a US-brokered ceasefire announced earlier this year.

TRUMP-XI SUMMIT

China warns on US arms sales to Taiwan

WASHINGTON DC

China has once again warned the United States ahead of President Donald Trump's visit to Beijing from May 13 to 15, stressing that its "four red lines" in bilateral relations should not be crossed.

In messages posted on X, the Chinese Embassy in Washington listed the sensitive issues as Taiwan, democracy and human rights, political systems, and China's development rights.

The embassy stated that China and the US should focus on building a stable and constructive relationship based on mutual respect, peaceful coexistence and cooperation that benefits both countries. The remarks came as preparations continued for Trump's official visit and high-level talks with Chinese President Xi Jinping.

Meanwhile, Trump confirmed that several leading American business executives were travelling with him aboard Air Force One. He denied media reports suggesting that Nvidia CEO Jensen Huang had not been invited. Trump described Huang's participation in the visit as an honour. According to Trump, the business delegation also includes Elon Musk, Tim Cook, Larry Fink, Stephen Schwarzman and other major industry leaders. Trump said he intended to urge Xi Jinping to further open China's markets for American companies and investments during the discussions.

The US President described Xi as a friend and expressed optimism about the outcome of the visit. He said trade and economic cooperation would remain the main topics during meetings with Chinese officials. The White House also confirmed that former First Lady Melania Trump would not accompany Trump on the trip to China.

Ronaldo eyes final WC amid Saudi future doubts

Portugal superstar remains determined proving age and league criticism cannot slow ambitions anymore

MADRID

Cristiano Ronaldo is preparing for what is expected to be his sixth and final FIFA World Cup, determined to prove he can still perform at the highest level despite leaving European football to play in Saudi Arabia.

The Portugal captain, who turned 41 in February, shocked the football world when he joined Al Nassr FC in late 2022 after ending his second spell with Manchester United F.C.. The move sparked criticism from fans and pundits, many of whom believed Ronaldo had effectively stepped away from elite competition.

However, Ronaldo has continued to silence doubters with consistent performances and goals for both club and country.

Portugal coach Roberto Martínez insisted the veteran forward remains as motivated and influential as ever ahead of the global tournament next month.

"He keeps performing and he keeps showing his value and that he is important for the national team," Martínez said. "To have that hunger when you've won everything in the game is quite remarkable."

Ronaldo and longtime rival Lionel Messi are both set to become the first players to feature in six World Cups. Ronaldo already holds the record for most appearances and goals in men's international football, with 226 caps and 143 goals for Portugal.

The forward is also the only player to score in five different World Cups.

Despite concerns over the quality of football in Saudi Arabia, Ronaldo's numbers remain extraordinary. Since joining Al Nassr, he has continued scoring at an impressive rate while helping Portugal maintain its competitive edge internationally.

He has scored 25 goals in his last 30 appearances for Portugal and recently played a key role in the team's UEFA Nations League triumph, including scoring in the final against Spain.

Ronaldo has repeatedly defended the Saudi Pro League against criticism, arguing that scoring there is more challenging than many believe.

"The numbers don't lie," Ronaldo said in a previous interview. "For me it's easier to score in Spain than score in Saudi."

Although he has confirmed this World Cup will be his last, questions remain over how much longer he will continue playing professionally.

For now, Ronaldo's focus remains firmly on leading Portugal in one final attempt to win football's biggest prize.

Southampton Reach Playoff Final amid Spying Row

Saints edge Middlesbrough after extra time to move closer toward Premier League promotion

SOUTHAMPTON

Southampton F.C. moved within one victory of a return to the Premier League after defeating Middlesbrough F.C. 2-1 after extra time in a dramatic Championship playoff semifinal overshadowed by a spying controversy.

The tense second leg at St Mary's Stadium ended with Southampton sealing a 2-1 aggregate victory thanks to a late winner from Shea Charles, whose cross curled directly into the bottom corner with just four minutes remaining in extra time.

The match unfolded under intense scrutiny following allegations that unauthorized filming of Middlesbrough's training sessions had taken place before the semifinal clash. The English Football League has charged Southampton with breaching competition regulations and requested an independent disciplinary hearing at the earliest opportunity.

Southampton, however, sought additional time to complete an internal review into the matter, meaning any punishment is likely to be decided before the playoff final against Hull City A.F.C. on May 23.

The Championship playoff final is widely regarded as the richest single match in world football, with promotion to the Premier League potentially worth more than £200 million through broadcast revenue, sponsorship and prize money.

Tensions boiled over throughout the semifinal. Southampton coach Tonda Eckert and Middlesbrough manager Kim Hellberg were involved in a heated confrontation on the touchline near the end of the first half before being separated by officials.

After the goalless first leg, Hellberg had openly criticised Southampton over the spying allegations, accusing the club of attempting to "cheat."

The fiery atmosphere continued during the match when an on-field exchange between Middlesbrough defender Luke Ayling and Southampton's Taylor Harwood-Bellis reportedly led to allegations of discriminatory language, according to British media reports.

Despite the off-field distractions and emotional intensity surrounding the contest, Southampton managed to maintain composure and secure progression to the final.

The Saints are aiming for an immediate return to the Premier League after suffering relegation last season, ending an 11-year stay in England's top division from 2012 to 2023.

Hull City, meanwhile, are seeking their first Premier League appearance since 2017, setting up a high-stakes final later this month.

Al Attiyah Headlines Strong Field For Jordan Rally in MERC Championship

AMMAN

Nasser Al-Attiyah headed a star-studded field for the Jordan Rally, the third round of the 2026 FIA Middle East Rally Championship (MERC), set to begin on Friday across the Dead Sea and Jordan Valley regions.

The six-time Dakar Rally champion arrived as the favourite while chasing a record-extending 21st regional title and an 18th victory in Jordan since first winning the event in 2003.

Al Attiyah teamed up with Spanish navigator Candido Carrera in a Skoda Fabia RS prepared by Autotek Motorsport. He led a competitive 17-car field featuring drivers from 10 nations and six Rally2 category machines.

The Qatari opened the 2026 MERC season with victory in Oman before compatriot Abdulaziz Al Kuwari claimed the second round in Qatar. Al Attiyah currently remained firmly in contention for yet another regional crown in a career already filled with records and achievements.

One of his strongest challengers was expected to be Oman's Abdullah Al Rawahi, who partnered Jordanian co-driver Ata Al-Hmoud in another Skoda Fabia RS. The duo had previously won the Jordan Rally in 2023 and hoped a return to full fitness would reignite their championship campaign.

Veteran Qatari driver Nasser Khalifa Al-Attiyah entered the round as the championship leader after consistent performances in Oman and Qatar. He partnered Lebanese co-driver Ziad Chehab in the only Ford Fiesta on the entry list. Saudi Arabia's Hamza Bakhashab also emerged as a serious title contender this season. The Jeddah-based driver, accompanied by Irish navigator Lorcan Moore in a Toyota GR Yaris, sat second in the championship standings and aimed to emulate his father Abdullah Bakhashab, the 1995 regional champion.

Veteran Dutch coach returns aiming guide Curaçao through memorable debut World Cup tournament

Curaçao Reappoints Dick Advocaat Ahead Of Historic FIFA WC Campaign

WILLEMSTAD

Dick Advocaat has returned as Curaçao head coach just three months after stepping down, with the veteran manager now set to lead the Caribbean nation at its historic first FIFA World Cup appearance.

The Curaçao football federation confirmed the 78-year-old's reappointment, a day after compatriot Fred Rutten departed the role following a brief spell in charge.

Advocaat had originally resigned in February citing a family health issue after successfully guiding Curaçao through qualification for the expanded 2026 FIFA World Cup. However, reports suggested players were eager for his return after two disappointing warm-up defeats under Rutten against Australia and China in March.

In a statement, the federation said discussions regarding the details of Advocaat's appointment were ongoing, with the objective of ensuring "stability, clarity and continuity" around the national team ahead of the tournament.

Curaçao's World Cup debut will also place Advocaat in the history books. When the team faces Germany national football team in Houston on June 14, he will become the oldest coach ever to manage at a FIFA World Cup at 78 years of age. The previous record belonged to Otto Rehhagel, who coached Greece at the 2010 World Cup aged 71.

This will be Advocaat's third World Cup as a head coach and remarkably his third with a different nation. He previously led the Netherlands national football team at the 1994 tournament and South Korea in 2006.

Curaçao has been drawn in a challenging group alongside Germany, Ecuador and Ivory Coast in the first-ever 48-team World Cup, jointly hosted by the United States, Canada and Mexico. The expanded tournament format significantly benefited the CONCACAF region by providing additional qualification spots, helping smaller nations like Curaçao secure a place on football's biggest stage.

Kriish, Manish and Mukund Advance as Karan Exits Karnataka Open Challenger

BENGALURU

Indian players Kriish Tyagi, Manish Sureshkumar and Mukund Sasikumar advanced to the second round of the Karnataka Open ATP 50 Challenger, while sixth-seeded Karan Singh suffered an early exit. Wild card entrant Kriish Tyagi delighted local fans at the SM Krishna Tennis Stadium with a composed 6-2, 7-5 victory over Japanese qualifier Taiyo Yamanaka in the opening round.

The 19-year-old Bengaluru player, currently studying and competing in collegiate tennis at Texas A&M University in the United States, showed confidence from the beginning by breaking Yamanaka's serve in the opening game. Kriish maintained control throughout the first set and sealed it comfortably 6-2.

The second set proved more competitive as the higher-ranked Yamanaka settled into rhythm and challenged the Indian teenager with consistent serving and clean returns. However, Kriish produced the decisive break in the 11th game before serving out the match 7-5.

Another Indian player who enjoyed a memorable day was Manish Sureshkumar. The 26-year-old recorded his first ATP Challenger main draw victory in more than six years by defeating American qualifier Ronit Karki 6-4, 7-6 (7).

Tiger Woods' Prescription Records Shared in Florida DUI Case

STUART

Tiger Woods will have his prescription medication records handed over to prosecutors as part of the ongoing investigation into his March arrest on suspicion of driving under the influence in Florida.

Martin County Circuit Judge Darren Steele approved the agreement during a brief hearing after discussions between Woods' legal team and state prosecutors.

The prosecution had requested records from a Palm Beach pharmacy covering all prescription medications issued to Woods from the beginning of the year through March, the month of the incident.

Woods' attorney Doug Duncan had initially opposed the request, arguing that the golfer had constitutional privacy rights regarding his medical information. However, Duncan acknowledged during the hearing that such rights were not absolute and that prosecutors could present legitimate reasons for requiring the records in the case.

As part of the agreement, prosecutors accepted the defence's request for a protective order restricting access to the documents. Under the court-approved arrangement, the records will only be accessible to prosecutors, law enforcement officials, state experts and Woods' defence team.

Legal experts said the development was not unusual for cases involving suspected impairment caused by drugs rather than alcohol.

Florida law clearly defines alcohol impairment at a blood-alcohol level of 0.08 percent or higher, but there is no fixed measurement standard for prescription medications or other drugs. As a result, prosecutors are expected to rely heavily on field sobriety tests, police observations and supporting evidence to establish impairment.

Woods has pleaded not guilty to the charge.

According to the sheriff's office report, deputies found two pain pills in Woods' pocket after his SUV reportedly clipped a truck trailer before overturning on a residential road in Jupiter Island.

Withdrawal of leading contenders changes complexion of women's 57kg wrestling competition completely

Vinesh's Absence Leaves 57kg Category without Several Top Wrestlers

NANDINI NAGAR

The women's 57kg category at the 2026 Senior Open Ranking Tournament witnessed a dramatic change in complexion after Vinesh Phogat was not permitted to compete, leading to the withdrawal of several prominent wrestlers from the event.

The tournament, currently underway in Uttar Pradesh's Nandini Nagar, had generated significant excitement after Vinesh, a two-time World Championship bronze medallist, registered for the competition. However, her eventual absence shifted the spotlight away from the category and altered the competition dynamics considerably.

Several notable names, including Manisha, Neha and Tapsya, who had initially registered in the 57kg division, later withdrew from the tournament. While the category originally had 10 entries including Vinesh, the final number rose to 14 after fresh participants joined and multiple established wrestlers stepped away.

Among the withdrawals, Manisha had recently clinched gold in the 57kg category at the Zagreb Open earlier this year. Neha, another strong contender, won bronze at the 2026 Asian Championships in the 59kg category and enjoyed a successful 2025 season with multiple international medals, including titles at the Yasar Dogu, Vehbi Emre and Hamit Kaplan Tournament and the Mongolia Open Ranking Series.

Tapsya, who also pulled out, had won gold medals at both the U20 World Championships and U20 Asian Championships last year.

Her father Parmesh Ahlawat explained that academic commitments and preparation for upcoming international events influenced the decision.

"Tapsya appeared in her BA final year examination today. Besides, she also has to compete at the U23 Asian Championships later this month, so we decided to withdraw her entry," he said.

He added that her primary focus remains the upcoming Asian Games selection trials.

Sources close to Manisha also stated that she preferred to avoid back-to-back competitions while training at the national camp ahead of the Asian Games trials.

Despite the increase in entries, Vinesh's absence undeniably reduced the overall glamour and anticipation surrounding the 57kg competition.

Food MSMEs crushed under rising compliance rules

NEW DELHI

India's food processing MSMEs are struggling with growing compliance burdens, according to a recent industry report. Businesses face thousands of yearly regulatory requirements involving food safety, labour laws, taxation, packaging, and environmental rules. Frequent policy changes and overlapping regulations have increased costs and legal risks for smaller companies lacking dedicated compliance teams. Experts warned that many firms risk penalties, licence suspensions, and product recalls because they cannot quickly adapt to changing standards. The report also highlighted poor infrastructure, limited testing facilities, and expensive technology upgrades as major obstacles.

Australia invests millions to grow India ties

Australia allocates $25.3 million in its budget to strengthen economic ties, security, and trade partnerships with India.

NEW DELHI

Australia is putting its money where its mouth is by setting aside $25.3 million in its new budget to boost its friendship with India.

This financial boost is designed to tighten the economic and military bonds between the two nations, especially as the world deals with shifting politics and global trade uncertainty.

The funding is part of a "Strategic Partnership" that helps Australian businesses find success in India's massive, growing market. A key part of the plan includes the "Maitri" grants, which fund new projects in areas like clean energy, technology, and education. Additionally, a large chunk of the money will go toward keeping the Indian Ocean safe and secure for trade.

Australian Foreign Minister Penny Wong noted that in a time of global chaos and conflict, Australia wants to be a reliable partner that India can count on. The timing is perfect, as trade between the two countries is already booming. Over the last few years, Indian exports to Australia have more than doubled, reaching $8.5 billion.

A major reason for this success is a trade deal signed four years ago. As of January 1, 2026, almost all Indian goods can enter Australia without paying any extra taxes or duties. By removing these costs, both countries are making it easier for local companies to sell their products abroad. This budget hike ensures that this momentum continues, creating more jobs and a more stable future for the entire region.

Indian businesses go global with billion-dollar deals

NEW DELHI

India's business world is booming despite global tension, recording a massive 220 deals worth $22.8 billion this past April. A new report reveals that Indian companies are feeling ambitious, aggressively buying businesses abroad to expand their reach and influence.

The surge was fueled by five "mega-deals" that alone brought in $17.4 billion. These large-scale transactions accounted for nearly 80 percent of the month's total value. While the number of deals grew slightly, the actual money involved jumped by nearly 1,000 percent compared to the previous month. This marks the highest value for mergers and acquisitions the country has seen since mid-2022.

Private equity firms also stayed busy, though they are becoming more selective. Instead of funding many small startups, they are putting larger amounts of money into fewer, more established companies.

Meanwhile, the public stock market remained healthy, with six companies successfully launching their IPOs and raising millions of dollars from investors.

Different industries saw different types of wins. The pharmaceutical sector led the way in total money spent, while the retail, tech, and manufacturing sectors were the busiest in terms of the number of individual deals. Interestingly, for the first time ever, real estate tied with the energy sector for the most deal activity. Experts say these trends show.

India invites Kuwait to "Bharat Innovates 2026" in France, showcasing deep-tech breakthroughs in AI and green energy to foster strategic investment and economic diversification partnerships.

Bharat Innovates showcases hi-tech growth in France

NEW DELHI

India is inviting Kuwait to join its high-tech journey through an upcoming global event called "Bharat Innovates 2026." Paramita Tripathi, India's Ambassador to Kuwait, recently shared that this is a golden chance for Kuwait to invest in India's growing "deep-tech" sector, which includes advanced fields like artificial intelligence and green energy.

The main event will take place in Nice, France, from June 14 to 16. It will feature over 100 groundbreaking inventions from India's top researchers and universities. This gathering aims to bring together global investors and policymakers to see how Indian technology can solve modern problems.

Ambassador Tripathi pointed out that Kuwait is currently working on its "Vision 2035" plan to diversify its economy. By partnering with India, Kuwait can find new solutions in areas like healthcare, cybersecurity, and farming technology. India has already proven its strength with successful space missions to the Moon and Mars, and now that expertise is moving into the startup world.

With over 10,000 startups and a massive number of science and engineering graduates, India is becoming a global hub for new ideas. The country is focusing on big projects like the National Green Hydrogen Mission and space exploration. This partnership offers Kuwait a way to invest in the future while helping both nations grow. By working together, they can create new technology that benefits people far beyond their own borders, proving that collaboration is the best way to drive global progress.

Indian goods exports set for growth boost

NEW DELHI

India's export sector is looking up as new data predicts the country will ship out nearly $112 billion worth of goods in the first quarter of the 2027 financial year. Reports suggests that despite a shaky global economy, Indian products remain in high demand across the world.

The forecast highlights that "non-oil" exports, which include everything from electronics to textiles, are expected to reach $97.8 billion. This represents a healthy 3.5 percent growth compared to the same time last year. Experts believe this steady rise is being fueled by India's ability to find new buyers in different countries and the success of recently signed international trade deals.

The Exim Bank uses a specialized tracking model to predict these trends. Their analysis shows that while global demand is picking up, the government's quick policy changes and credit support for businesses have played a vital role in keeping local factories busy. Additionally, favorable exchange rates are making Indian goods more attractive and affordable for foreign buyers.

However, the outlook isn't entirely without hurdles. The report warns that ongoing wars, general global uncertainty, and wild swings in the prices of raw materials could still pose risks to this growth. Even with these challenges, the momentum remains positive.

The bank plans to release its next set of predictions in August, but for now, the data suggests that India is well on its way to strengthening its position as a global trading powerhouse.

Uber, Adani Group partner for data center

AHMEDABAD

In a major boost to India's tech landscape, ride-hailing giant Uber has announced it will build its first Indian data center in partnership with the Adani Group. Uber CEO Dara Khosrowshahi shared the news following a high-profile meeting with Adani Group Chairman Gautam Adani, highlighting India's transformation into a global innovation powerhouse.

The new facility is scheduled to be ready later this year. It will serve as a testing ground for Uber's latest technology, helping the company develop and deploy digital solutions at a massive scale. Khosrowshahi emphasized that this project isn't just for local users, it follows a "from India, for the world" philosophy, using Indian engineering talent to improve services globally.

The partnership is a perfect match for the Adani Group, which is currently pouring billions into digital infrastructure. The conglomerate is already working on a massive $10 billion project to create "AI-ready" data centers across the country. By joining forces, Uber gains a reliable, high-tech home for its data, while the Adani Group strengthens its position as a leader in India's digital future.

As more people use apps for travel and deliveries, the need for fast, secure data storage is skyrocketing. This investment ensures that Uber can keep up with demand while contributing to India's goal of becoming a top destination for technology and research. For everyday users, this means smarter, faster, and more reliable app experiences powered by homegrown infrastructure.

HIDDEN PRESSURES PUSH INDIA'S INFLATION TO 5.1%

NEW DELHI

Everyday costs for Indian families are expected to rise moderately this year, with retail inflation projected to average 5.1 percent. Reports suggests that while prices have stayed relatively calm so far, several "hidden" pressures are beginning to move toward the consumer's wallet.

In April, inflation saw a tiny nudge upward to 3.48 percent. Up until now, the government has helped shield the public by keeping petrol and diesel prices steady at the pump. However, the report warns that this protection might not last forever. With global oil prices expected to climb as high as $95 per barrel due to Middle East tensions, the cost of transporting goods is becoming much more expensive for companies.

It isn't just fuel that is a concern. Experts are worried that a "below-normal" monsoon season and intense heatwaves could damage crops. If farming is hit hard, food prices - which have been low recently could jump back up. Additionally.

Low scrap supply hinders eco-friendly steel

NEW DELHI

India is facing a major hurdle in its race to produce eco-friendly "green steel" due to a severe shortage of recycled scrap. Sanjay Kumar Singh, a former Steel Secretary, revealed that only 25% of the nation's steel demand can currently be met using scrap-based methods, leaving the industry heavily reliant on traditional iron ore.

Speaking at a national mining and metals conclave, Singh explained that while using scrap and renewable energy can cut carbon emissions by 80%, the country simply doesn't have enough old metal to recycle. This forces manufacturers to use blast furnaces, which consume more energy and release higher levels of carbon dioxide. To make matters worse, the quality of iron ore found in India is rapidly declining, meaning even more energy is needed to process it.

Despite these challenges, the Indian steel sector is growing fast. Crude steel production has hit nearly 169 million tonnes, growing at about 9% every year. To balance this growth with environmental goals, the government is pushing initiatives like the National Green Hydrogen Mission and a proposed "Green Steel Mission."

Singh also highlighted the Carbon Credit Trading System, a program where companies that cut emissions earn credits, while heavy polluters must pay up. While this is currently optional, it will soon become mandatory. For now, the industry is focusing on pilot projects to test new tech, but until scrap collection improves, fully green steel remains a difficult goal.

Govt hikes crop prices to help farmers

NEW DELHI

In a major move to support India's farming community, the Union Cabinet, led by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, has approved a price hike for 14 essential summer-sown crops.

This increase in the Minimum Support Price (MSP) for the 2026-27 season ensures that farmers receive at least 50% profit over their production costs.

The biggest winners this year are growers of sunflower seeds, who will see a price jump of Rs 622 per quintal. Significant increases were also announced for cotton, nigerseed, and sesamum.

By offering better prices for these specific items, the government hopes to encourage farmers to move away from traditional cereals and grow more pulses and oilseeds, which are in high demand.

INFLATION ALERT

RBI Governor warns of possible price surgeT

NEW DELHI

India may soon see a hike in petrol and diesel prices if the conflict involving Iran continues to drive up global oil costs. RBI Governor Sanjay Malhotra warned that the rising price of crude oil is putting a heavy strain on the country's economy and testing its ability to keep inflation under control.

The Governor explained that while the central bank has tried to support economic growth by keeping interest rates steady, a long-term war in the Middle East would eventually force prices up. If fuel becomes more expensive, the cost of transporting goods will also rise, making everyday items pricier for families across India. Currently, the RBI is in a "wait and watch" mode, but officials say they are ready to act if these high costs become permanent.

The situation is becoming urgent for oil companies as well. Petroleum Minister Hardeep Singh Puri revealed that state-run oil firms are losing nearly Rs 1,000 crore every day. Even though global oil has crossed $100 per barrel, local pump prices have stayed the same, causing these companies to pile up massive debts.

India is particularly vulnerable because it imports 88% of its oil. While the Minister assured the public that India has enough fuel stocks to last about 76 days, the financial pressure is mounting. To keep supplies steady, the government has already boosted LPG production. However, with losses reaching nearly Rs 2 lakh crore, officials hint that a price adjustment is now just a matter of time.

PBKS Must Avoid Overanalysing Losses, Says Coach Bahutule

Punjab Kings urged to stay positive ahead of crucial Mumbai Indians IPL clash

DHARAMSHALA

Punjab Kings spin-bowling coach Sairaj Bahutule believes his side must avoid dwelling on defeats and instead focus on learning quickly as the IPL 2026 season enters a decisive phase.

Following Punjab Kings' fourth consecutive defeat, this time against Delhi Capitals in Dharamshala, Bahutule admitted the team was disappointed but stressed the need to move on swiftly in the demanding IPL schedule.

"Obviously, everyone is disappointed, but we cannot overthink and overanalyse. In a couple of days' time, we will be playing Mumbai Indians here. It is important to take the learnings from this game," Bahutule said.

Punjab appeared to have the contest under control for large periods before Delhi Capitals successfully chased down a daunting 211-run target. Bahutule pointed to lapses in the closing stages, particularly in bowling execution and fielding standards, as the turning point. "We will certainly look into phases of our bowling and the fielding part. We almost had the game in the bag, but we did not execute the skills in the last five overs. If we had taken the two catches, DC may not have reached the target," he explained.

Despite the losing streak, Bahutule remained optimistic about Punjab's playoff hopes. Led by captain Shreyas Iyer, the team still has opportunities to revive its campaign in the remaining league matches.

"We are still in the hunt to qualify for the playoffs. There are going to be a lot of ups and downs. We have to put these losses behind us and move ahead," he added.

Delhi Capitals' victory was powered by young all-rounder Madhav Tiwari, who impressed in his first appearance of the season. The 22-year-old picked up two crucial wickets before playing a composed unbeaten knock of 18 runs off just eight balls during the chase. "I just tried to control my nerves and do the basics well. I was in the zone and wanted to win," Madhav said after the match.

Delhi eventually completed the 211-run chase comfortably, adding to Punjab Kings' growing concerns ahead of their must-win clash against Mumbai Indians.

Bowlers Need To Catch Up In Modern T20 Cricket, Says Dravid

Former India coach says evolving batting standards are reshaping modern T20 cricket completely

NEW DELHI

Former India head coach Rahul Dravid believes bowlers are struggling to keep pace with the rapid evolution of T20 batting, saying the format has tilted heavily in favour of aggressive batters in recent years.

Dravid, who guided India to the 2024 T20 World Cup title, praised the fearless approach of young Indian batters and said modern players are now accessing parts of the ground that were once considered impossible to target consistently.

Dravid said the quality of batting in the shortest format has improved dramatically over the last few seasons.

"To see the quality of batting that has happened over the last two or three years, I think the bowlers in that format of the game will slowly have to do some catching up," Dravid said.

He singled out emerging stars like Vaibhav Sooryavanshi, Ayush Mhatre, Priyansh Arya and India's top-ranked T20 batter Abhishek Sharma for changing the approach to Power-play batting with their attacking mindset.

"I think batsmanship and the ability to hit sixes and access different parts of the ground has improved leaps and bounds," he added.

While acknowledging that bowlers are currently under pressure in T20 cricket, Dravid expressed confidence that they would eventually adapt by developing new skills and strategies.

"Probably a lot more batsmen are able to cope with the requirements of the modern T20 game than some of the bowlers have been able to at this point. That may change in two or three years," he said.

Dravid also pointed out that the balance is different in Test cricket, where bowlers continue to dominate and produce result-oriented matches regularly.

The former India captain suggested that slightly more challenging pitches could help restore balance in T20 cricket by giving bowlers additional assistance through turn, bounce or movement.

"They may need a little bit of support. We don't want the balance to be too skewed either way — towards batters or bowlers," Dravid observed.

He, however, avoided recommending specific rule changes such as increasing the number of bouncers per over, saying the game naturally goes through phases where either bat or ball dominates.

Punjab Kings urge responsible reporting after online rumours spark controversy around franchise players

PBKS Clarifies Stand amid Rumours, Revises Social Media Statement

NEW DELHI

Punjab Kings has issued a clarification amid rising social media speculation surrounding some of its players, urging fans and media platforms to avoid spreading unverified rumours that could damage the franchise's image.

The controversy emerged after a video allegedly showing spinner Yuzvendra Chahal vaping during a flight surfaced online. Around the same time, discussions regarding opener Prabhsimran Singh's fitness and reported weight gain also gained traction across social media platforms.

Responding to the growing chatter, Punjab Kings released a statement on its official X account, stressing the difference between criticism and misinformation.

"Criticism, banter, and opinions are part of sport. Fake stories and made-up narratives for cheap engagement are not," the franchise initially posted.

The original statement specifically urged "sports journalists" to verify facts before circulating information online. However, the post was later deleted and reposted after removing the phrase "sports journalists," seemingly to avoid further controversy.

The revised version retained the franchise's appeal for responsible reporting and social media conduct while dropping the direct reference to journalists.

Punjab Kings co-owner Preity Zinta also reacted strongly to the issue, backing the team's stand against misinformation.

"There's a difference between criticism and calculated misinformation. Healthy debate around the game is welcome, but the deliberate spread of fake narratives to damage individuals, the team, or the brand should not and will not be taken lightly," Zinta wrote on X.

Bangar Backs KKR for Historic IPL Comeback Push

RAIPUR

Former India batting coach Sanjay Bangar believes Kolkata Knight Riders are capable of scripting one of the greatest comeback stories in IPL history as the two-time champions continue their late surge in the 2026 season.

After struggling near the bottom of the points table for much of the campaign, KKR have dramatically revived their playoff hopes by winning four consecutive matches. Their turnaround has reignited belief among fans and experts alike, with the side suddenly emerging as a dangerous contender heading into the final phase of the tournament.

Bangar said Kolkata finally appear to have found the right balance after weeks of inconsistency.

"KKR have won four matches in a row. Their team balance is looking solid. The spin attack has regained its bite, and the batting unit is firing consistently. They are peaking at the right time, which is what matters most in a long tournament," Bangar said. The former India coach highlighted the growing confidence within the squad and stressed that teams building momentum late in the competition often become serious title contenders.

"Teams that build momentum towards the business end often go deep into the playoffs. KKR are in a very good space right now. That's why their playoff probability has gone up significantly," he added.

KKR currently sit eighth on the IPL 2026 standings with nine points from 10 matches, but they still have four league games remaining. Bangar believes winning all four could transform their difficult campaign into a memorable recovery story.

"If they win their remaining four games, they will pull off one of the greatest comebacks in IPL history. From the bottom of the table to the top four, that would be a remarkable turnaround. It will take a special effort, but with the form they are in, it looks possible," Bangar stated.

Vettori Praises GT Bowlers after SRH's Crushing Defeat

AHMEDABAD

Sunrisers Hyderabad head coach Daniel Vettori admitted that Gujarat Titans thoroughly outplayed his side with a disciplined and clinical bowling display during their IPL clash in Ahmedabad.

After posting 168 for 5, Gujarat Titans dismantled SRH for just 86 to register a massive 82-run victory — Sunrisers' biggest defeat in IPL history in terms of runs. Half-centuries from Sai Sudharsan and Washington Sundar laid the platform for GT before their pace attack ripped through Hyderabad's batting lineup on a seam-friendly surface.

Vettori credited Gujarat Titans for executing their plans perfectly with both bat and ball.

"Really good performance by GT, they put us under a lot of pressure with the ball and then the opening pair set it up so well. We were satisfied at the halfway mark, we knew we are coming up against their bowling line-up," Vettori said.

He acknowledged the challenge of facing an attack featuring Mohammed Siraj, Kagiso Rabada, Prasidh Krishna and Rashid Khan.

"Five seamers plus Rashid is always going to be challenging. We didn't get the start we wanted and they were able to capitalise. Their bowling was brilliant," he added.

Vettori described Gujarat Titans as a "formidable team" capable of adapting quickly to conditions. He said GT were especially effective in utilising the helpful pitch conditions in Ahmedabad.

Despite the crushing defeat, the former New Zealand spinner defended his batting unit, saying one poor outing should not overshadow their impressive campaign so far.

"169 we thought we had a chance, but I don't put any blame on the batting unit. They have been exceptional this year. Every team in the IPL is going to have small blips once in a while and ours was tonight," he said. Vettori also praised SRH's bowlers for restricting Gujarat below 170, insisting the total still looked chaseable at the innings break.

SPECULATION GROWS OVER HARDIK PANDYA'S FUTURE WITH MI FRANCHISE

MUMBAI

Speculation surrounding Mumbai Indians captain Hardik Pandya has intensified after fans noticed changes in his social media activity following the franchise's disappointing IPL 2026 season.

Mumbai Indians became the first team to be eliminated from playoff contention this season, managing only three wins and missing the playoffs for the fourth time in the last six editions. The poor campaign has triggered widespread criticism, with attention now shifting toward Pandya's future as captain.

Rumours began circulating after several fans claimed that Pandya had unfollowed Mumbai Indians' official Instagram account following the team's defeat against Royal Challengers Bengaluru. Social media users also pointed out that posts and collaborations related to Mumbai Indians appeared to have been archived or removed from the all-rounder's profile.

Although neither the player nor the franchise has officially commented on the reports, the developments sparked intense debate online. Fans have started speculating whether Pandya could part ways with the five-time IPL champions ahead of next season. Some social media discussions even linked the Indian all-rounder with a possible move to Chennai Super Kings after he was seen speaking with CSK chief executive Kasi Viswanathan following a recent MI-CSK encounter. Others suggested Royal Challengers Bengaluru or Kolkata Knight Riders as potential destinations if he leaves Mumbai Indians.

Scheffler chases breakthrough after runner-up run at PGA defence

NEWTOWN SQUARE

Scottie Scheffler is the defending champion at the PGA Championship and arrives at Aronimink Golf Club carrying an unusual run of three straight runner-up finishes that have tested his patience but not dented his confidence. Runner-up finishes to Rory McIlroy at the Masters, a playoff loss to Matt Fitzpatrick at the RBC Heritage, and another close call behind Cameron Young have defined his recent weeks.

He joked that his wife noted the streak, but said the performances show he is close rather than struggling. Scheffler remains world No. 1 and has not finished outside the top 30 since 2024, underlining his consistency.

Rory McIlroy, Jon Rahm and Jordan Spieth headline a stacked field, with Scheffler and McIlroy having shared most of the recent majors between them. The course is expected to challenge precision into heavily contoured greens, which Xander Schauffele called "diabolical."

McIlroy, who won the Masters last year, said strategy off the tee may be limited but second-shot control will be crucial. Scheffler said finishing second is painful but often easier to analyze than poorer results.

A repeat victory would place Scheffler alongside Tiger Woods and Brooks Koepka in rare PGA Championship history, adding further weight to his pursuit of a third straight season at world No. 1.

Jon Rahm and Xander Schauffele are also among the contenders, with firm conditions expected to expose every mistake across the weekend at Aronimink Golf Club in Pennsylvania shaping major championship drama this week unfolding drama.
